Union and East County Go Way Back — to

By VIRGINIA SPIFFER

SUN SAN DIEGO UNION

Saturday, February 1, 1992

California Reads: In this Day, It's Bond, It's Bond

The San Diego Union

and the Backcountry

Late last night in the Backcountry, the Backcountry

was still simmering. The Backcountry, the Backcountry

was still simmering. The Backcountry, the Backcountry

was still simmering. The Backcountry, the Backcountry

was still simmering.
The Union has lost its function as a newspaper. The people who used to read it have disappeared. The only reason why it exists now is because of the few who still subscribe to it. The Union's main problem is its lack of content. The articles are hardly interesting and the opinions expressed are often biased.

Moreover, the Union's circulation has decreased significantly. People are no longer interested in reading about local affairs. They prefer to get their news from the internet or other sources. The Union's editors are trying to find new ways to attract readers, but it seems that they are not succeeding.

In conclusion, the Union is facing a crisis. If it does not find a way to improve its content and increase its circulation, it may soon become a thing of the past.

Tom Jones